Superintendent Farrington of the Reform School is away examining cottages, with the view of effecting a plan for the removal of the school. He is accompanied by Hon. Albion Little, Gen. Perry and Mr. Bolster. They will visit the reform schools in New Jersey, and Connecticut.

The Forest City Refinery, of Portland, will start up in a day or two. About four hundred barrels of sugar will be turned out daily at first. The superintendent, engineer and head cooper came from abroad. Thirty-five men employed are the pick of the old force who wished to come back.

James O'Neil, a thirteen year-old boy of Portland, was arraigned in the Municipal Court, Friday, for larceny of railroad tickets from the Maine Central Station at Lewiston Junction. It appeared in evidence that the boy was put on a train for not having a ticket, and that he managed to get into the ticket office during the absence of the agent and stole a number of tickets and got home by the next train. On being arrested for the theft, young O'Neil took the officer to his home and produced tickets to the value of thirteen dollars and ninety-five cents which he had secreted there. The court sentenced him to the Reform school during his minority.

On the first day of last November the fishing schooner Georgie Willard, Capt. Eli D. Leighton and a crew of eleven men, left Portland for the Gulf of Mexico to engage in the red snapper fishing. While in the Gulf on the morning of the 21st of January, Howard Alley, one of the crew, fell overboard from the jibboom and was lost. There was a heavy sea at the time, otherwise he might have been saved. Mr. Alley was twenty-two years old and his home was in Southport, where he leaves parents and brothers and sisters to mourn his loss. The Georgie Willard reached Portland Friday, bearing her colors at half mast.

Kennebec.

The Waterville Sentinel says Orin Tilton lost a horse Saturday. A post mortem examination revealed the stomach of the horse a sack four and a half feet long with head and eyes perfect. It was six inches around the body. It was the color of blood with the exception of a white stripe the length of it. Its mouth when opened was more than four inches in width.

Knox.

The old stone dwelling house on Negro Island, Camden harbor, which the light keeper occupies, is to be taken down and a new wooden dwelling house erected on the same spot. Steamer Myrtle is expected about April 15th, with men and materials for erecting the dwelling house. It is expected that it will be ready for occupancy in July.

Secretary Halford says that more than one thousand letters are received on an average at the White House each day.

Senator and Mrs. Stanford will take a small party of friends to Alaska in June. Among the party will be Justice and Mrs. Field.

Senator Hawley's wife and little daughter will soon sail for England early in May. Senator Hawley will go over later and visit the Paris Exposition with his family.

It is expected that 40,000 troops will be in line at the constitutional celebration in New York. Pennsylvania will send 9,000 troops, and New York will be represented by its entire National guard.

Scarlet fever prevails to an alarming extent in New York city. There were seventy-one deaths last week, against an average of only seventeen for the corresponding week in the past five years.

John D. Rockfeller, President of the Standard Oil Company, and who will be the richest man in the country in a few years at the present rate of increase, earned his first dime by carrying a package for a man on the docks at Cleveland.

The health of the famous Cardinal Newman is now so seriously impaired as to cause his friends the utmost apprehension. Some weeks ago he took a heavy cold, which all the Doctors in London have thus far been unable to conquer.

Vice President and Mrs. Morton, who are now in the metropolis, will return to their country house at Rhinebeck after the Centennial ball in New York. They now expect that President and Mrs. Harrison will go with them and remain several days.

M. Chevreul, the French scientist who died Tuesday, at the age of one hundred and two, was a centenarian whose son died, aged sixty-nine. M. Chevreul is reported to have been very much changed that a child of his should have to call in a physician at that tender age.

P. T. Barnum's eldest grandson, Clinton, Barnum Seeley is to assume the management of the greatest show on earth after the old showman dies. He is now twenty-two years old, has travelled around the world, and does not smoke, drink or swear. P. T. says he is a worthy descendant of P. T.

S. Jerome Uhl, the Washington artist, is hard at work on a portrait of ex-President Cleveland, for the Corcoran Art Gallery. There is now in that institution a complete set of Presidential portraits, with the exception of one of Cleveland, which Mr. Uhl is to furnish.

A trader at Americus, Ga., boasts of having a remarkably smart wife. Although he has been married ten years, she has never asked him for a dollar, and he has never given her any money. He generally borrows from her, and she makes many purchases on credit at yard, dry goods, grocery, hay, etc., and pays the store. He does not buy anything but cigars, and never gets a dollar in his pocket. She pays all everything else, and all the bills.

Mrs. Laura Darling Middlebrooks, of Leedsville, Dutchess County, N. Y., was born July 4th, 1708, at that place, has spent her whole life there, has ninety-six descendants, and is just as happy and as wise as if she had been moving every first of April from one town to another.

It is proposed to celebrate in September the bi-centennial of the building of the first paper mill in America. Part of the ruins of the old mill are yet to be seen on the banks of the Wissahickon, near Philadelphia. Mr. George W. Childs has actively interested himself in the movement for the celebration.

Probably not one in a thousand realizes the fact that, next to England, little Holland, whose King is at present at death's door, is the greatest colonial power in the world. The Dutch colonies have an area of nearly 800,000 square miles, which includes some of the finest colonial possessions in the world.

It has just been learned that John D. Rockefeller's wedding present to his daughter, now Mrs. Strong, was a cash deposit of $1,000,000 to her credit in a Cleveland bank. Less than a month ago, the same authority says, Mr. Rockefeller had more than $17,000,000 on deposit in New York banks alone.

Colonel Edward A. Chittenden, of St. Albans, recently elected president of the Sons of the Revolution of Vermont, is a great-grandson of that eminent statesman and patriotic constitutional leader of the Revolutionary period, Gov. Thomas Chittenden, who was chairman of the committee which drafted the Declaration of Independence of Vermont.

The spring emigration from Europe to the United States has assumed large proportions this year. The arrivals since January at Castle Garden have added over 60,000 to our population. Our advices from Germany, Italy, the British Isles, and Sweden are such as to lead to the belief that we are about to have an extraordinary number of new-comers.

The printing of newspapers by means of electricity has been inaugurated in England by the East Anglian Daily Times, of Ipswich, printing its evening edition, the Star. The electric power was supplied from accumulators at the central lighting station and the experiment was thoroughly successful. The turning on of a switch provides power day or night, rendering the edition of frequent editions easy.

A lovely flower, called the rice lily, grows thickly in part of southwestern Georgia. It is extremely sensitive to the light. The blossoms fold up at night but open in the morning. At night, while the white blossoms are closely enfolded in their purple covering and the flowers are asleep, if a lamp is placed near them they will gradually open and turn toward it. If a strong light is placed on one side of the vase containing them, the half of the bouquet that faces the lamp will be unfolded, while the other half, that is in the shadow will remain tightly closed.

Orono Letter.

[Regular Correspondence Whig and Courier.]

Miss Agnes Chaplin, one of the talented and studious young ladies of the Orono High School, and a Normal graduate, has been elected one of the assistants at the Orono High School. Miss Chaplin has every quality for a brilliant professional career.

Mr. E. H. White, for sixteen years clerk for James Walker & Co., Basin Mills, has established himself in the dry goods and grocery business with Mr. E. E. Ring. We wish him a full measure of success in his new enterprise and believe that the same characteristics which have made him so successful as clerk will result in his continued prosperity.

Rev. J. L. Hill, pastor of the Orono Methodist church, returned from Montreal, Thursday evening, where he attended the marriage of his sister. He said the dust had been blowing in the streets for two weeks, although the ice palace was still standing in all its magnificent grandeur.

Next Monday night, the annual Easter Monday ball will take place at the Orono Town Hall. Abbott is to furnish the music. Supper will be served in the hall below.

Rev. F. A. Wilson, of Billerica, Mass., Mrs. Fuller, of Kansas, and other children and grandchildren of Hon. and Mrs. Nathaniel Wilson, are arriving in Orono to be present at the golden wedding, or fiftieth anniversary of their parents' wedding day, April 17.

A large number of our lumber manufacturers have commenced business, and business will revive. We were gratified, to-day, in witnessing one of our prominent lumber manufacturers making arrangements whereby his workmen should receive a share of Uncle Sam's almighty dollars for his Saturday nights' enjoyment.

A Ball of Fire.

NOVEL EXPERIENCE OF THE STEAMER TROPIC OFF CAPE HATTERAS.

The crew of the steamship Tropic, which arrived at New York from Progreso Friday, had the most novel experience of all in the big storm last Saturday and Sunday. Sunday morning, in the midst of a tremendous electric storm off Cape Hatteras, the sea suddenly became fiery red. A terrible hissing sound was heard, which came apparently from overhead. It grew in volume, and the illumination rapidly increased, until the light became so brilliant that the crew could distinguish only sparks of fire. A huge red ball of fire appeared overhead, apparently as large as a big balloon. It came in a slanting direction toward the steamer and fell into the ocean only a few yards from the vessel, filling the air with flakes of fire. Millions of sparks fell into the wake of the fire-ball, illuminating the steamer for several moments. During the disturbances the barometer vibrated one-tenth each way, thus indicating that the fire-ball was a metallic substance.

They Cut Down The Poles.

TROUBLE IN MIDDLEBORO ABOUT THE ELECTRIC LIGHT WIRES.

Early Friday afternoon it really looked as if Middleboro had been struck by electricity. Electric wires were rapidly being strung, while in several places poles were falling into the streets as they were being sawed by the direction of the town officers. About one-third of the poles that were placed were levelled to the ground, while the others would probably have shared a like fate if wires had not been placed upon them. People were not more excited than they have been since the war, and a large crowd thronged the streets, enjoying the fun. The excitement was increased when an arrest was made of one of the company's men for interfering with the officers' work. Mr. Stiles, the president of the company, arrived on the afternoon train from Boston, and things have quieted down.

The company acknowledge they were wrong in defying the authorities by placing their poles without their permission, and agreed to pay all expenses to the town. They have since taken their poles and the point will be settled according to a plan agreeable to both parties. The question now arises, how will the town be lighted the next year, as the contract is given to the Middleboro Gas & Electric Company, while the streets are to be poled by the Middleboro Electric Light & Power Company, it being generally the case that only one set of poles are allowed in a town the size of Middleboro. The gas commissioners of the state will probably settle the matter.

The selectmen and commissioners have repeatedly ordered the work of erecting the poles to be stopped since the work first began Tuesday, until they gave permission and located the poles. As no notice was taken of their orders, they began to saw down the poles a little before noon, as they threatened to do.

Mrs. H. B. Stowe.

HER PHYSICAL HEALTH GOOD, BUT MIND FAILING.

More than four score years have left their effect on the once fertile brain of the woman who gave "Uncle Tom's Cabin" to the world in 1852, at a time when, under the impress of New England ideas and the anti-slavery teachings of the men of her family, her soul was full of the lesson which she sought to teach, writes a Hartford correspondent of the New York Herald. Harriet Beecher Stowe at that time had few peers among the women of America in intellectual or physical vigor. To-day age has laid its hand heavily upon her, and while retaining some of the physical strength of former days, her mind has become that of a little child.

She has chosen to pass her remaining days here in her old home in Hartford rather than in her beloved Magnolia, in sunny Florida. Many of her old friends and companions are around her, and their faces serve to cheer her hours, although it is not always that her memory serves to identify them. Her home is a pleasant, roomy cottage in the western section of the city, which she purchased as a summer residence at a time when she made Magnolia her home for most of the year. Her two daughters, Hattie and Eliza, are her daily companions. Her son, the Rev. Charles E. Stowe, a Congregational clergyman, who has a flourishing charge in the city, is with her frequently.

Everything about the room has an air of quiet refinement—the subdued colors of the carpet and draperies, the modest framing of the paintings and engravings and the collections of rare but inexpensive souvenirs of her travels. To her a cherished object is a table with flat top and wide shelf beneath for books and papers which she designed herself when sojourning at Rye Beach many years ago. On this table was written "Old Town Folks," and, in fact, all her works since the summer of 1866. Plain though it is, it makes a very convenient writing table, and I am told that the enterprising Yankee carpenter who made it for her netted quite a neat sum afterward by making and selling duplicates as the "Harriet Beecher Stowe table."

Her bed is in this room. Her meals are served here. For a long time her diet has been carefully guarded, and everything has to be especially prepared by her attendant, a faithful, careful Irishwoman of middle age, who is with her constantly, day and night, and whose sturdy arm serves to support her around the room and in her fresh air rambles in the neighborhood. Much of her daily life is a blank from failing mental faculties. Her attention concentrates at times, but with apparent effort upon objects which have been favorites with her. Among these are a painting of the crucifixion, which she brought in Italy and which hangs over the fireplace; a water-color of flowers by her mother, the first Mrs. Lyman Beecher; her old Bible and a volume of the writings of Oliver Wendell Holmes, which was one of the last books in which she exhibited any interest.

Her hair is snow white now, and in appearance she has perceptibly changed during the past year, but there is yet much of the old time brightness of the eye and animated expressions of the face. At times in expression of face and manner of speech, I am told, there are startling reminders of Lyman Beecher, and again of the great pastor of Plymouth Church. Physically her general condition is pronounced by her physician as by no means unfavorable. Lately she has even gained flesh slightly, and is far stronger than when last summer the news was flashed over the wires that she had come home to Hartford to die.

The comparative activity of her daily life may have something to do with this. The Beecher will dominates, and she is not content to be idle. For weeks past, whenever the weather would permit, she has taken short walks in the neighborhood, and finds two pleasant resorts in the greenhouses of her neighbors, Newton Case and Samuel L. Clemens. Fruits and flowers daily find their way to her room, and the gardeners evince a real pleasure in the visits of the authoress. Her mental condition is a painful one to her friends, as they note day by day the failing of her intellectual powers, the loss of memory, the inability to concentrate her attention upon anything. She is now unable to compose a simple note, yet she writes quite readily from dictation. Remarkable as it may seem, her penmanship has all the beauty and firmness of her earlier days, with no tremor or uncertainty anywhere noticeable.

For a long time past she has been quite unable to give any attention to her business affairs, and they have been attended to by her son, the Rev. Mr. Stowe, who has practically been the head of the household and her business manager for ten years or more. He has cared for her copyrights, her investments, her Southern property and all other matters during that time, her husband, Prof. Stowe, having been unable to give much attention to business matters for some time prior to his death, in 1886.

A word may be of interest in conclusion as to the remarkable longevity of other members of her family. Her brother Edward, residing in Brooklyn, N.Y., has reached the age of 87; her brother William, of Chicago, is 85; her sister Mary, residing at Roxbury, Mass., is 83, and her half-sister, Mrs. Isabella Beecher Hooker, and half-brother, the Rev. Thomas K. Beecher, of Elmira, N. Y., are also well advanced in years.

TUESDAY, APRIL 16, 1889.

Senator Morrill, of Vermont, celebrated his seventy-ninth birth day in Washington Saturday night, on which occasion there was a brilliant gathering at his home.

The Utica Herald announces that Mr. Ellis H. Roberts will retain all his interests in the Herald, and that he will merely retire from active editorial management during his occupancy of the responsible office of Assistant Treasurer of the United States at New York.

It is reported that the President contemplates taking the whole south front, first floor, of the State Department building, for the executive offices, and establishing a routine of office hours there. Such a plan would give the President of the United States a privilege which the humblest employee of the Government have, but which the Chief Executive does not now possess, the right to enjoy his own home. The clerks in some of the smallest divisions of the State Department have more room and more conveniences than the clerks at the Executive Mansion, who are so greatly overworked and overcrowded.

The protection sentiment in the South is constantly expanding. Gen. James A. Walker, of Virginia, writes to Col. H. C. Parsons the following letter indorsing the movement looking toward the formation of a Southern Protective League:

I heartily indorse your efforts to unite the protectionists of the South in a league, through which their views may be disseminated and their influence felt. Scattered and divided as they are now they have neither recognition or influence. The solid South, as it is, now solid, on a sectional idea and issues, is a detriment to the interests of the Southern people, and a hinderance to the development and prosperity of the Southern country; and it is the duty of all good citizens who desire the good of our Southern land to unite in the efforts to interest and harmonize our people in economic and business issues. That a protective policy is the true policy for our whole country, and especially for the new South, is too plain for argument, and, if protectionism were dead and buried, I believe at least seven or eight Southern States would be protection States.

The New York Herald, disgusted with the inane talk indulged in by the Times, Evening Post and papers of that class, says: "Our neighbor, the Times, finds fault with Secretary Noble because he is reported to have said: 'Wherever I find an efficient Democrat I am going to discharge him and fill his place with an efficient Republican.' 'There is no policy about this,' Secretary Noble is reported to have added; 'it is just common sense.' Undoubtedly he is right. Mr. Cleveland did not appoint Republicans, but Democrats. He appointed, to be sure, all sorts of men who called themselves Democrats—protectionists as well as tariff reformers, unlimited silver men and greenbackers as well as sound money men—and there is where the Herald always said he made a serious mistake. President Harrison and his Cabinet officers do exactly right when they select for appointment only Republicans. They are bound—if they believe in their party's principles and platform—to appoint to office only men who agree with those principles and platform."

The Treasury Department did not move any too quickly in deposing Treasury Agent Herbert F. Beecher in Washington Territory, if the report of eleven indictments against him for frauds practiced in his office are true. An investigation of affairs in that customs district shows a bad state of things to have existed during the last administration. It will be remembered, says the Concord Monitor, that Beecher was sent out to Washington Territory by President Cleveland as a Mugwump son of a Mugwump clergyman, both of whom had such a holy horror of James G. Blaine in 1884 that they could not vote for him for President. If no one said the office bestowed was in the nature of compensation for the support of Cleveland by father and son, it was not because they did not think so. There were intimations of crookedness on the part of Beecher almost from the day he assumed his official duties, and it is evident the grand jury had sufficient proof it laid before them or they would not have returned such a batch of indictments. Of all Pharisees the most pharisaical are those of the Mugwump variety of the crop of 1884.

FULL PROGRAMME OF SUBJECTS FOR DISCUSSION AT THE CONFERENCE—ELABORATE REGULATIONS EXPECTED.

The American delegates to the International Marine Conference, which is to assemble in Washington on the 15th of October, have, at a preliminary conference, completed the programme of subjects to be discussed, and Admiral Franklin has sent this programme to Secretary Blaine, who will at once transmit it to those foreign governments which have agreed to send delegates to represent them at the conference.

The programme will have great interest for all masters and officers of vessels. Admiral Franklin writes in his letter to Secretary Blaine:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
INTERNATIONAL MARINE CONFERENCE,
WASHINGTON, April 3, 1889.

Hon. James G. Blaine, Secretary of State:

Sir—I have the honor to inform you that in conformity with the instructions of the State Department of February 27, 1889, the delegates on the part of the United States to the International Marine Conference met on Monday, 25th ult., organized and proceeded to the consideration of a detailed programme of the subjects to be considered by the International Conference for transmission to the several Powers.

This programme was completed on the 30th ult., and is herewith enclosed.

The correspondence between the State Department and the British government on this subject was examined, and, in conformity with the intentions of our government therein expressed a consideration of the "international code of flag signals" was excluded from the programme and a consideration of the "load line" was included. With this exception and this addition the entire subject matter of the act of Congress of July 9, 1888, was arranged in general divisions, following as nearly as possible the precise language of the act. These general divisions were then carefully considered and each was arranged under subdivisions and subheads.

It is believed that this arrangement in detail is sufficiently broad to include all matters bearing directly upon the principal topics, and care has been taken at the same time to avoid extending the field of deliberations of this conference beyond the limits indicated in the act of Congress and its interpretation by the State Department.

Very respectfully,
S. B. FRANKLIN,

Beauty

Is desired and admired by all. Among the things [illegible] it may best be done to enhance personal beauty is the daily use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. No matter what the color of the hair, this preparation gives it a lustre and pliancy that adds greatly to its charm. Should the hair be thin, harshly dry, or turning gray,

Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore the color, bring out a new growth, and render the old soft and shiny. For keeping the scalp clean, cool, and healthy, there is no better preparation in the market.

"I am free to confess that a trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor has convinced me that it is a genuine article. Its use has not only caused the hair of my wife and daughter to be but it has given my rather stunted moustache a respectable length and appearance."—R. Bratton, Oakland, Ohio.

"My hair was coming out (without any assistance from my wife, either). I tried Ayer's Hair Vigor, using only one bottle, and now have as fine a head of hair as any one could wish for."—T. T. Schmitton, Dickson, Tenn.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor in my family for a number of years, and regard it as the best hair preparation I know of. It keeps the scalp clean, the hair soft and lively, and preserves the original color. My wife has used it for a long time with most satisfactory results."—Benjamin M. Johnson, M. D., Thomas Hill, Mo.

"My hair was becoming harsh and dry, but after using half a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it grew black and glossy. I cannot express the joy and gratitude I feel."—Mabel C. Hardy, Delavan, Ill.

THE OUTER WORLD IS FULL OF BEAUTY

To us in despite of the absence of years"
How sweet the remembrances of home still appears?
From allurements abroad which but flatter the eye,
The unsatisfied heart turns, and says with a sigh—
Home, home, sweet, sweet home?
There's no place like home,
There's no place like home.

But the eye grows tired in looking at the manifold and ever varying beauties of nature, and gladly turns to the quiet and not less beautiful Home-life for rest and comfort.

"Be it ever so humble, There's no Place like Home!"

Advises Against Appointment.

In reply to Gov. Burleigh's inquiry whether members of the last Legislature are eligible to appointment as Commissioners, under certain resolves creating commissions, Attorney General Littlefield replies that the law has heretofore been held that they are eligible, "but," he continues, "as, my advice is asked I feel bound to say that while these appointments would be, legally competent, they would, in my opinion, be in violation of the spirit of the Constitution, and I do not therefore feel justified in advising you to make them."

THE ST. LOUIS SUICIDE.

The Principal Topic of Discussion, Monday.

ST. LOUIS, April 15. The suicide of John Jackson, president of the St. Louis Elevator Company, is still the leading topic on 'change. The air is filled with rumors as to the causes leading up to the tragic event. From Dr. Samuel Bracket, Mr. Jackson's physician, it was learned to-day that the suicide was not an impulse, for he had frequently discussed with the doctor various methods of self-destruction. At the opening of 'change, this morning, the opening of wheat failed to materialize. During the morning quite a stir was caused by inquiries from Chicago, as to the amount due the Third National Bank by Jackson. Thomas E. Lott, president of the Third National Bank, stated that Jackson borrowed $170,000 from the bank, and the loan was amply secured by warehouse receipts. Horace Chilselin, secretary of the St. Louis Elevator Company, will not lose over $50,000.

The ball took effect in the left temple, fracturing the skull. There is but a very slight chance for the wounded boy's recovery. Darkmiller was locked up.

A BOLT OF LIGHTNING

Causes Much Commotion If not Fatal Injury.

FINDLAY, Ohio, April 15. Yesterday a bolt of lightning struck the house of C. H. Perkins, Jackson Township, in this county, descended by a pipe to the basement, and threw a dog sleeping by the stove so violently against a stone wall that he was instantly killed. A servant girl, standing by the stove, was stunned and shocked so severely that she will hardly recover. Mrs. Perkins and babe were in the room and escaped without injury. In front of the house a team of horses ran away, throwing the hired man from the wagon, severely injuring him. The animals demolished the vehicle and seriously injured themselves. Mr. Perkins was in the garden. A spade which he had in his hand was knocked some distance away and he was so severely stunned that he did not recover consciousness for an hour. The house caught fire from the overturned stove but a heavy rain extinguished the flames before much damage was done.

Edwin Booth opened here to-night as Iago to Barrett's Othello. [illegible] and most appreciative audience assembled in the Opera

A slight rain Friday impeded the flames temporarily, but broke out fresh Saturday, raged with increased vigor. The flames impelled by a gale

FRIGHTENED STEERS. A horse belonging to Mr. Berry, of Hampden, attached to a carriage, became frightened on Exchange street yesterday noon, and ran away up the street, over Kenduskeag Bridge and up Main street. There he ran into the carriage of Mr. O. F. Patten, whose horse was frightened and started to run, but was caught before going far. The runaway next collided with a public carriage and the two horses attached to it ran for a short distance before being stopped. In the meantime the original runaway cleared himself from the wagon, which he left upon the sidewalk part way up the street, and ran down the Hampden road, where he was finally captured. It was fortunate that nobody was injured in the affair.

G. Gould's grand stallion "Echo" is seen quite often on our streets.——The enterprising firm of Jordan & Stewart have added a new office to their list of buildings.

Quite a lively although short runaway occurred yesterday afternoon on Kenduskeag bridge. A man was driving along in an express wagon when he came in contact with the city's road machine which was coming over the bridge. The consequence of the meeting was that the express wagon stopped suddenly and the horse left the shafts dragging the driver who held to the reins. After being dragged some distance he finally stopped the horse and then returned to his wagon whose shafts and axle were broken. The wagon was tied to another and drawn off. The wagon was not injured. A few other horses were frightened by the runaway, but they did not create any trouble and were soon soothed.

THE PURIM. On the afternoon of May Day the children will find amusement far beyond any May party they ever yet have seen. A play called "Jack and Fairyland" and attendant fairies will afford them no end of pleasure. Ice cream and cake will be on sale and the children's table of fancy articles will attract them. It will indeed be to them a gala day. To be present at an Oriental Purim will be an event in the lifetime of old or young, not soon forgotten.

MILLINERY OPENING. The millinery opening of Mr. T. H. Coombs, at his establishment on Main street Saturday and yesterday was very largely attended by the ladies who called to both purchase and admire the beautiful assortment that was displayed in a most attractive manner. The bonnets seem to be quite similar to last season's shapes, but the hats have much wider brims than those formerly used. The prevailing shades in trimmings are light and dark rose and very many shades of green. Laces in different arrangements are fashionable for trimming and flowers will also be largely used. Among the handsome specimens of millinery observed by THE WHIG reporter were toque shaped bonnets, trimmed with lace, close bonnets in rose shades, the turtle shapes and the "Marquise." A bonnet with lilac trimming was also very handsome. Some of the pink trimmings were very attractive. Wheat will be used considerably upon bonnets and flower bands are also fashionable.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE HENRY C. POWERS. Our Orono correspondent writes: The funeral services of the late Henry C. Powers were held at the Methodist church Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock and there was a very large attendance of the friends and acquaintances gathered to pay their last respects. There was a short service at the residence of the deceased, at the close of which the remains were escorted to the church by Mechanics Lodge, F. and A. M., of Orono, and a large delegation of Sir Knights from St. John's Commandery, Knights Templar, of Bangor. Rev. J. L. Hill, the church pastor, officiated. His address was full of loving sentiments, eloquently expressed. The church choir sang two selections very impressively. At the conclusion of the pastor's address the Masonic service was repeated, after which the remains were escorted to the Orono cemetery, where they were laid to rest under the beautiful forms and ceremonies of the Masonic fraternity. The floral offerings, which were very handsome, included a crescent of hellotrope on a bank of wheat and a cross and wreath of beautiful roses and buds. The bearers were [illegible] Hall, [illegible] Chapman, [illegible] Edwin Libbey and Robert J. Hamilton.

Rev. F. C. Rogers has accepted the invitation of S. J. Oakes Post, G. A. R., of Old Town, to deliver the Memorial Day address. The Post has secured a most eloquent speaker.

Rev. George D. Lindsay, pastor of the First M. E. church, will deliver the memorial sermon before B. H. Beale Post, G. A. R., on May 26th. The Post has made an excellent selection.

The Maine Central workmen were engaged yesterday about the yard in putting in safety irons between the rails and in the switches so that the feet cannot be caught in the track. This is in compliance with the law passed by the last Legislature and is an excellent provision.

Twenty-seven postal clerks in the New England Division of the Railway Mail Service have been removed, including three, on the Bangor and Boston run, namely F. A. Maddocks, of Bar Harbor, F. E. Brown, of Waterville and E. W. Hanks, of Augusta. H. A. Godfrey, of New Hampshire, a former clerk on the run, has been reappointed to his old position.

SEARSPORT BARK CONFISCATED. The schooner W. S. Rowe, which arrived at San Francisco from Honolulu Thursday last, brought news of the seizure of the American bark C. D. Bryant, of Searsport, at Honolulu by the Hawaiian Government, sixty tins of opium being found among her cargo. By the arrival of the steamer Alameda Sunday information is received that the case was tried before a Court of Admiralty, and a decision rendered against the vessel, which was accordingly ordered confiscated. The case was immediately appealed and is awaiting a final decision. The bark has been allowed to load, and will sail under bonds of $19,000, which were furnished by the vessel's agent. The action of the Hawaiian Government is looked upon as very unjust, being against and contrary to the international treaties.

THE SALMON FISHING. Yesterday was the most comfortable day the salmon fishermen have yet enjoyed, the bright sun and balmy atmosphere being in pleasing contrast to the uncomfortable chilliness of the preceding days. Two handsome specimens were added to the catch previously reported, Mr. F. W. Ayer having killed a beauty, weighing nineteen and a half pounds and Mr. Fred H. Patten of Bath, another of seventeen pounds. We extend our congratulations to Mr. Patten, who is a most enthusiastic sportsman, that he, the first of our arrivals this year, as he was also last year, should have been rewarded with a prize on his first day's fishing. He had his fish packed and sent home to his friends in Bath last night. We hope that his good luck will continue and that he may have a large number to his credit during the season. The handsome display of salmon at Lynch & Gallagher's market yesterday attracted much attention. They have handled all the salmon which have been taken with a fly this season and last night sent five of them to delight the palates of residents of Boston, New York and Bath. Mr. Stetson's beautiful twenty-six pounder was sent to a friend in Boston. Besides the two fish taken yesterday another was struck but not landed. Despatches have been received announcing that other visitors are on the way, and we shall soon see lively work at the salmon pool.

MYSTERIOUS DIGGERS

Create a Sensation on the Webster Road.

Something of a sensation was created yesterday by an occurrence that took place upon the Webster road late Sunday night. The affair was not reported to the police until yesterday morning, when information was brought to City Marshal Whitney concerning it. Officer Gilman at once went to the spot, and learned the particulars. It seems that Mrs. Edward Tuttle, who resides at the head of Buck street was sitting up late waiting for the return home of some of the members of the family, and in looking out of the window saw a man standing in the open field. After he had stood still for some time he began digging up the earth with a pick. Mrs. Tuttle called her husband, and together they watched the man. Soon afterwards another man made his appearance from behind a barn in the vicinity, and he went back and forth from the barn to where the other was digging, several times. The last time he was accompanied by two other persons, and they all commenced digging. As the moon was out brightly their movements could be readily seen. After digging for a time they all left and went behind another barn a short distance off, but after an hour's absence returned and appeared to be filling up the hole. They covered the earth with dry straw and manure and then left at about half past three o'clock.

The men did not appear to Mr. and Mrs. Tuttle to have any large bundle with them to put in the hole or to carry away from it. They went away, running, and were not seen again during the morning.

Officer Gilman was accompanied by two men and they began digging as soon as they reached the spot

A GIRL'S MISTAKE.

By MRS. G. BIGG-WITHER.

Geoffry we have been friends comrades for years. I think if I have ever had a wish at concerned you, if any only child should leave my home it should be for yours.

'Forgive me, Miss Ingbird but I am well nigh distraught.

'Can you explain it or tell me what she said?'

Sir Josaud he had a boy lover when she was at school at Havensmouth and that they were married at Kingstown office.'

'Has name?'

'Fitzsomething Fitzclard. But pray do not torture me further, I cannot bear it.'

Geoffry I ask you to suspend your judgment on my unhappy child. I will go and seek her, and find out the truth.'

Geoffry made no answer. What did it signify now? She could not be his wife.

Col. Musingburd hastily left the room and made his way with clement strides to the Lady's Glen. There upon the ground lay Carmen hysterical sobs shaking her frame. She heard no footfall, no sound till her father with infinite compassion in his voice called "Carmen!"

'Oh papa papa! You will be kind to me?'

'My poor child! Sit down by me on this seat and tell me what is this dreadful tale which I have just heard from Geoffry Escourt. Can it be true that my daughter for years deceived her father? Have you, Carmen contracted a marriage unknown to me.

Papa I did undergo some ceremony three years ago but not at a church and, believe me I attached no importance to it. I thought it a little bit of romance. I was only just 17 an ignorant, silly, romantic school girl.

Carmen said her father, 'I wish you to put me in possession of the whole facts—feel the entire truth.'

When I was at school at Havensmouth we used to attend St. Botolph's church Sunday after Sunday there was always a handsome young fellow who sat near us for whom I watched for me. Then he put little notes in my prayer book (the books were left at church) then we met in the grounds that led by a little gate into the pine woods. He told me how dearly he loved me and at last I began to love him. He wrote beautiful poetry, and I believed a bank clerk. A cousin of his died and left him some money. He said as I should be rich he could not live on my money, so that if I would marry him he would go out to the colonies and make a fortune and not till then claim me. So one morning (I was to spend the day with Aunt Catherine who you know was at Havensmouth as good deal) we went to the registrar and were married.

To be continued in this Paper.

Both cried a long. A thrill of hope ran through the father's heart. Could Geoffry have forgiven?

Directly we were married I parted Allen Hume at Aunt Catherine's door, and then went off by train to Ireland to catch the mail steamer at Gravesend. I have never seen him since. He wanted to write a good deal but some little time ago I wrote and told him I thought we had made a great mistake and that I had changed my mind. I have heard nothing of or from him since. That is all, papa.

And enough. From your own showing you have been faithless heartless. Put down the child's name the registrar's office thing, date so that I may obtain legal advice and till your mind to pack up at once. I cannot in all Sir Geoffry by your presence.'

'Oh papa I do love Geoffry with all my heart. Will he never forgive me? If he only would believe I did not care an any young Won't you tell him how I love him.

No! said the colonel sternly. If you are a married woman your love is dishonoring both to him and yourself.

Like some fair flower drooped by the cruel hail storm, Carmen bent her head. At last she realized the abyss that separated her from her lover the hands to whom she clung with every fiber of her heart. With blind days of mortal grief to her feet. 'Father. Let me go away at once.'

'Yes that must be effected as soon as possible. 'Oh Carmen my child, what have I done that you should so deceive me? You who were left by your mother to be my consolation. Oh my daughter you have made my gradual very March of bitterness.

'Forgive me. Forgive me!' and she wound her poor tired arms round her father's neck. 'Do not I suffer? Is it nothing that my confidence should be almost greater than I can bear.

My poor little Carmencita I will do my best for you. We must go to some quiet place with Con in Adelaide and then I will consider the legal aspect of the case. If it is illegal, then we will try and get it dissolved at once. If not—He could not bring his mind to anything further then. With protecting tenderness he kissed her brow, smoothed her disordered hair and placing her arm in his they slowly wended their way to the house, by the most circuitous route so as to avoid meeting any of the house party. He saw his daughter to her own apartment, and then sought Miss Escourt. To her he narrated the dreadful morning's history. It was with grief that she listened to it her tender heart was torn with conflicting emotions keen sorrow for her idolized brother, and for the man she loved infinite pity while for the poor misguided girl she had gentle womanly compassion.

'Help us to get away, Marcia, for indeed I cannot face them.'

Trust me, Herbert.' And her warm, firm grasp spoke volumes. 'I will go and see the poor child but I must speak to Geoffry first.'

'Tell him all, Marcia. And God bless you dearest of sisters.'

'Oh, Geoffry, my poor, poor brother! Fortune indeed is cruel to you. Nothing but sorrow to those I love.'

An hour afterwards Col. and Miss Musingbird were on their way to town, "summoned by important business. The only person who did not regret it was Clara Gay. With all the field to herself, surely she might do something. She would try, anyway. Julius was dreadfully disappointed, he knew that his host was very much in love with Carmen, but all was fair in love and war; and until she really was appropriated, he had as much right as any one to try his luck. To Sir Geoffry the strain of keeping up before his guests was frightful. However, two more days would see the house clear. And Marcia with unselfish care for him, took most of the entertainment of their friends on herself.

But it was impossible to avoid noticing the havoc made on the face of the poor fellow. The bright cheerfulness that had shone out of the honest, kind blue eyes was replaced by a worn and sleepless look. Hard hit, the men pronounced. Hard hit, indeed! But he bore his sufferings like the brave true knight he was, his courtesies to Miss Gay were the same his guests equally considered. Only his sister knew the terrible strain, and it pressed with peculiar force on her affectionate heart.

They had all gone. Brother and sister were alone. Oh! the desolation of it all! At last Sir Geoffry could bear it no longer.

'Marcia! Could you make up your mind to go with me to Rome, and spend the winter there? I know, dear, it is like dragging up a tree by its roots, but if you would, I should feel grateful. I cannot stay here. Marcia. It is torture to me. I cannot settle down. Let us go to Rome, dear.

I will go to the end of the world with you, Geoffry!

No dear, he answered with a faint smile. 'I will not put your love to such a test as that. Rome will do.

'When do you wish to start, Geoffry?'

'Next week. Will that hurry you too much?'

'Not in the least, answered she cheerfully. But, as her brother had said, it was like dragging up a tree by its roots. Marcia's placid happiness was enshrined and centered in Escourt. The house the gardens, her pets, her poor, "the trivial round the common task" furnished the quiet useful life that suited her.

But for Geoffry! why who would sacrifice everything—herself if needs be.

INDIAN TERRITORY.

I have used Swift's Specific for scrofulous affection and nervous disorder resulting from blood poison, and pronounce it the very best medicine I ever took. It has cured me, for which I am very grateful.

JOHN RUSSELL, Late Indian Inspector.

ALWAYS RECOMMENDS IT.

I have used Swift's Specific in my family for years for various disorders incident to this climate, and it has always given prompt relief. I took it myself for rheumatism, disorder, produced by indigestion, and it has entirely relieved me for this year, and it gave me the long sought relief. I induced a friend of mine to take it for a sore leg of over twenty years standing, and it has cured him.

WM. PUTNEY,

Humors run riot in the blood at this season. Hood's Sarsaparilla expels every impurity, and vitalizes and enriches the blood.

When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Take courage O weak ones despondent
And drive back the foe that you fear
With the weapon that never will fail you
O, be of good cheer.

I was troubled with catarrh for seven years previous to commencing the use of Ely's Cream Balm some five months ago. What it has done for me what other so-called remedies failed to do—cured me. The effect of the Balm seemed magical.—Clarence L. Hall, Biddeford, Me.

SCROFULA

Is that impurity of the blood which produces unsightly lumps or swellings in the neck, which causes running sores on the arms, legs, or feet, which develops sores in the eyes ears or nose often causing blindness or deafness, which is the origin of pimples cancerous growths or "humors" which fastening upon the lungs causes consumption and death. It is the most prevalent of all diseases and very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla which by the remarkable cures it has accomplished has proven itself to be a potent antidote for this disease. If you suffer from scrofula try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, my little boy, three years old being a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. We all took Hood's Sarsaparilla and all have been cured of the scrofula. My little boy is entirely free from sores and all four of my children look healthy and clear by.
